DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. Step (d) of claim 1 recites the display of "many varieties" of an object; it is not clear how many varieties would constitute "many".

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kirksey. Kirksey discloses in column 5, lines 47-62 of the specification a method of presenting information to a user comprising simultaneously displaying a word and a generic object corresponding to the word, and simultaneously presenting the sound of the word. With respect to step (d) relating to displaying a variety of images of the object in context, Official Notice is taken that this feature is well known. For example, the television program Sesame Street has since 1998 included a segment called "Elmo's World". Each episode of "Elmo's World" teaches about a specific object or objects, and includes early in the segment a montage of real-world images of different varieties of the object being taught (babies, dogs etc.). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the relevant art to modify the teachings of Kirksey by displaying a plurality of varieties of the object in context for the purpose of allowing a user to more easily understand the concept being taught. With respect to steps (e)-(g) of claim 1, these steps are a repetition of steps (a) to (c), and constitute a multiplication of the part taught by the prior art. Also, with respect to steps (e)-(g) of claim 1 and claim 2, it is well known to repeat presentation of information in teaching methods.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Ferrell, Clark, Castro, Falcon, Black, Clark, Shapiro, Marcus, Budra, Edwards, Lo and Wood disclose various methods of visually and aurally presenting educational information to a student.
